

Advanced Adversary Simulation: A Closer Look

Uncovering and exploiting vulnerabilities is an instrumental step in the attack process during an Advanced Adversary Simulation. To evade detection, RedTeam Security builds a test environment that mirrors a client's network environment allowing us to develop custom tools, run attack tools, and search for bugs and vulnerabilities all while remaining undetected in own lab environment before attacking the real client environment. The below graphic outlines our attack path during a zero-day exploit.

